

Ex 127.

1. After breakfast Mr. Wardle said, ~~ag~~ his addressing guests: "Have you nothing against that skating?"
2. All willingly agree and ladies began to ask Mr. Winkle to join them. They were ~~be~~ sure that he was a great athlete, since he never missed an opportunity to boast of his art.
3. But Mr. Winkle said that he had not practiced for a long time.
4. Yes - we began to insist that he go with them and show them his art.
5. It was useless to say that he did not have skates: he was immediately offered several pairs.
6. After that Mr. Winkle couldn't help ~~be~~ but go to the rink.
7. When they approached the lake, Mr. Bob Sawyer put on his skates and began to draw circles on ice.

8. Poor Mr. Winkle began by saying that he was very slippery: he could not even stand on the ice if someone didn't support him.

11. Suddenly, Mr. Pickwick, not knowing that his young friend couldn't stand on the ice without being unassisted, called Sam from the other side of the lake.

11. Sam was able to disengage oneself from ~~some~~ hands Mr. Winkle only pushing him away from you.

13. The unfortunate Mr. Winkle fell and sat on the ice, not even making an attempt to rise.

14. Mr. Pickwick was indignant that his friend told everyone that ~~was~~ ~~he~~ he was good at hlete.
