

14.09.20

Computers are so named because they were first designed to work with punched cards.

Summary 1

The Internet is a global computer network which embraces millions of users all over the world. It first designed in the United States in 1969 as a military experiment.

Millions of people use the internet and their number is constantly growing.

The most popular services on the Internet: reading Use net News, using the World-Wide Web, telnet, FTP.

The most important problems of the Internet are security and technical problems.